AN OZARKS HISTORY

BIG CEDAR LODGE

Osage Native Americans and wildlife roamed these hills for centuries, living in harmony with the land. Tucked deep in the heart of the Ozark Mountains, the area was accessible only by horseback and foot. Just after the turn of the twentieth century, railroads made their appearance, transforming this everyday world into a vacation paradise. The 1920's found two prominent Missourians, business entrepreneur Jude Simmons, and Frisco Railroad executive Harry Worman, building lavish country resort homes on 300 acres of land known as Big Cedar Hollow. Together, Simmons created a log mansion, reminiscent of the grand wilderness hunting lodges found in the Adirondacks, while Worman constructed a Tudor-style retreat of stone and stucco. Native materials were used throughout both homes, which can still be seen today in Devil's Pool Restaurant and The Worman House.

The property was purchased in 1947 by Dan Norris, a real estate executive and hotel operator. Norris added a lodge, swimming pool and stables to the property creating Devil's Pool Guest Ranch, named after a spring-fed pool on the property.

Purchased by Bass Pro Shops' founder Johnny Morris in 1987, the Simmons and Worman buildings were restored to their original prominence, rigorously committing to renew the natural beauty of Big Cedar Hollow. Big Cedar Lodge is now a grand wilderness resort, reminiscent of lavish, turn-of-the-century Adirondack hunting lodges, but with all the modern conveniences. Spread over 4,600 acres in its own wooded hollow in the Ozark Mountains and overlooking 43,000-acre Table Rock Lake, it has "quickly matured into the 'Best of the Best' in the region" according to the Wall Street Journal.
